1. According to a Yugoslav order issued on or about 20 February 1947 a census of all radio-sets has been made compulsory. Radio-set owners were compelled to personally declare their radios within eight days from the date of the order at the local post-office on a special form. Once the radio has been declared the owner is compelled to inform the local authorities of any change of address and redeclare the radio at his new domicile; sale or gift of the radio must also be reported, and if the person leaves the country he must clear through the local post-office. Persons violating the order are subject to a fine decided upon by the local municipal committee.
